Forecast for Tuesday 17 May 2022

Weather: Mist develop in places overnight, with low cloud likely to affect eastern ranges towards Crianlarich. This will clear slowly in the morning to leave a bright and dry day with sunny intervals developing. There will be increasing cloud in the afternoon and winds will strengthen as a band of rain moves in from the west by late afternoon. Rain will reach the eastern ranges during the evening and spread northeast overnight.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 800m: 0%, low cloud in the morning around eastern ranges. Improving to 90% by lunchtime but some low cloud returning in the afternoon.

Low Cloud and visibility: Broken low cloud above 500m in the east in the morning, cloud will lift and clear leaving most summits clear for the middle hours of the day. Some low cloud affecting the western ranges towards Arran and Mull in the afternoon as frontal rain approaches from the west. In the morning visibility will be poor in mist in places but will become good for most areas. Turning poor later in the west as rain spreads across the ranges.
